KOTESASHI YAYOI'S RARE CAR FILES

file 002 Subaru Sambar Van

A light van based on the Subaru 360
released by Fuji Heavy Industries in September 1961.
With its two stroke engine in the back
and independent suspension on all 4 corners,
it shares its basic layout with the Subaru 360.
The Sambar Van was produced in different models until 2012, though right now it's a badge engineered version of the Daihatsu Hijet Cargo.

What a young Rico reffered to as "a mouth that opens"
is actually an air intake for cooling purposes.
It lets in air, but it also lets in rain.

On page 12, Yayoi's last name is 小手指 (Kotesashi) which literally means "tiny/small fingers" but it's an actual name, and Rico is too dumb to read it
